

Short CV

Konstantina Kalfa is an architectural historian. As of September 19, 2024, she has been elected as an Assistant Professor of Architectural History and Theory at the Department of Art Theory and History of the Athens School of Fine Arts. Her publications on architecture's political economy and production mechanisms appear in several edited volumes as well as in the leading journals Architectural Histories, PLATFORM, Journal of the Society of Architectural Historians, Rethinking Marxism and Architecture and Culture. In 2022, she co-edited a Dossier on small-scale entrepreneurship in housing for ABE Journal 20. She is the author of the book Self-Sheltering Now! The Hidden Side of the US Aid to Greece [in Greek] (Futura, 2019). As of June 2024, Kalfa is co-coordinating European Architectural History Network's Interest group on 'Housing'.